Linda Haynes (4ArtSake)

Working primarily with acrylic paint on canvas, Linda is a self-taught artist who draws her inspiration from the images in the photographic journal compiled over the last four years to record her experiences in the many diverse cultures and environments experienced travelling through Western Europe and countries further afield including Thailand, Cambodia, Sri Lanka, Vietnam, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand.

Originally working with watercolours, Linda now paints exclusively in acrylics but she enjoys combining the varying technique used across both mediums.

In recent years Linda has spent the summer months working in a tiny remote hamlet in the Poitou-Charentes region of France. The very quiet, peaceful and secluded environment gave her the opportunity to develop her techniques, build up a selection of work from her photo-journal and compile the collection on display here at Highbury Theatre.

About the artist

Linda is from Sutton Coldfield. After secondary education she studied for 4 years at The Birmingham School of Jewellery. As a self-employed jeweller she found lots of inspiration for her designs both from nature and the local industrial environment, first drawing and then painting her initial ideas before creating them either in gold or silver. She had always enjoyed sketching or drawing and it was at this point her love of painting began. Linda taught and assessed for Birmingham Metropolitan College from 1999 until 2011.

She has sold paintings to collectors in Australia, New Zealand, UK, Portugal, France, Spain, Germany and Italy.
